Dedication

TO COL. W. P. PRICE, President of the Board of Trustees, and to the faculty of the North Georgia Agricultural College, through appreciation and regard for their faithful and earnest efforts towards the advancement and growth of our college and the cause of popular education in Georgia; to the alumni and friends of the institution, and to all who by their patient labors have made it possible for the young womanhood and manhood of Georgia to receive the advantages of higher education, this little book is respectfully dedicated by

THE EDITORS.

Introduction

TO THOSE who attended the N. G. A. C. this term, '05 will always remain a happy memory.

When oblivion shall have effaced from our vision many of the sweetest illusions of youth, and when time in its ceaseless course shall have brought us face to face with new conditions in a new arena of life, it is our sincere hope that some noble inspiration gained from the pleasant associations of Dahlonga, or some lofty ideal inculcated by the great epochs of history we have studied, will enthrone itself in the heart of our student-body to reign in joy forever.

That the recollections of '05 may in part be preserved in tangible form, we put forth this little souvenir as a memento for the student-body.

FACULTY, '05.

Miss C. "Mr. Ch-r-t-r-s, quote something illustrating the connection between sound
and sense."

Pr. Ch. (absently):

"Hear the loud alarm bells—

In the startled eve of night,
How they ring out their affright!"

The popular conception of the Club House, as reported by Madame Rumor.

This does not illustrate the "Battle of the Pyramids." It faintly suggests Stone Mountain
after we got through with them.

"All its lovely
companions
Are faded and gone."

The report of the cannon at 1:30 A.M. was startling;
but it was silence compared with the report of what the cannon was loaded with!

Is this a Jack-in-the-Box?
No; it is merely a lieutenant who did things and was reduced to ranks. The stripes are not convict stripes;
they represent horizontal creases.
